

Tim Crowe - A Sava Graduate

Tim Crowe is a Sava Graduate who joined the Diploma in Residential Surveying and Valuation as an Estate Agent, he now runs his own surveying company in Surrey, which has been established for nearly three years.

We recently caught up with Tim to get an understanding of his experiences with the Sava diploma and the Q&A is summarised below.

Q: Tim, how did the Sava Diploma help progress your career?

A: The Sava Diploma enabled me to progress my career successfully and run my own surveying company, which has been established nearly three years

Q: That's great to hear! What do you enjoy the most about the diploma?

A: I very much enjoyed the sense of achievement once I had finished the course. I found it challenging and suited to my professional background which is in property as an estate agent.

Q: How is your work life balance since starting your career in residential surveying?

A: I am now able to choose the working hours and arrange my free time accordingly, it is really nice being able to pick the hours/days that I work.

Q: What would you say to others considering a career in residential surveying?

A: If property is your passion then I would not hesitate to recommend the course. It is a genuine gateway to profession that is both rewarding and fulfilling. A great career opportunity with many open doors once qualified.

The Sava Diploma in Residential Surveying and Valuation could be the route to being your own boss. Click here to find out more: <https://sava.co.uk/education/diploma-residential-surveying-valuation/>

“

If property is your passion then I would not hesitate to recommend the course. It is a genuine gateway to the profession that is both rewarding and fulfilling.

I am now able to choose the working hours and arrange my free time accordingly, it is really nice being able to pick the hours/days that I work.

— Tim Crowe, AssocRICS
Sava Graduate